

Layla S.L Smith

Apollo

January 2020

Annotated Bibliography

Clint Edwards. August 16, 2020. "My Therapist Suggested Having A Conversation With My Younger Self - And It Was Transformative." Scary Mommy, 17 Aug. 2020, www.scarymommy.com/conversation-with-younger-self/.

This source provided insight of the physiological process in which one undergoes when analyzing their growth from their younger years to current day. Author Clint Edwards specifically uses his own experience of self-reflection on his childhood and if/how he would change who he had been then, to ultimately affect who he is now. This analysis aided in my own self-reflection in which I had a conversation with my younger self on my growth as a learner and individual from 9th to 12th grade. This self-reflection is presented through my short documentary titled, "The Final Curtain Call".

Cohn, Nate, and Kevin Quealy. "How Public Opinion Has Moved on Black Lives Matter." The New York Times, The New York Times, 10 June 2020, www.nytimes.com/interactive/2020/06/10/upshot/black-lives-matter-attitudes.html.

This source provided information on the varying opinions of the BLM Movement. The question of how/why individuals' viewpoints have shifted on the matter, become the focal point of the article. This information allowed me to thoroughly analyze BLM from its birth to present day. It also aided in my understanding of how the support for the movement has grown in recent years in which I incorporated into my personal essay.

Dean, Michelle. "Black Women Unnamed': How Tanisha Anderson's Bad Day Turned into Her Last." The Guardian, Guardian News and Media, 5 June 2015, www.theguardian.com/us-news/2015/jun/05/black-women-police-killing-tanisha-anderson.

This source analyzed and discussed each aspect of the Tanisha Anderson case. Author Michelle Dean specifically discussed how cases such as Anderson's do not receive much media attention. This information aided in my analysis of the influence in which the media has on court proceedings and the verdict of cases. I also examined how technology played a large role in cases, such as Anderson's, being brought to the forefront of the BLM Movement and protests. Also, I used this case as an example of how police brutality cases against black women often go with much public attention.

Oppel, Richard A., et al. "What We Know About Breonna Taylor's Case and Death." The New York Times, The New York Times, 30 May 2020, www.nytimes.com/article/breonna-taylor-police.html.

This source analyzed and discussed each aspect of the Breonna Taylor case. Author Richard Oppel specifically discussed the nationwide response to the death of Taylor. This information aided in my analysis of the influence in which the media had on court proceedings. Also, I examined how the BLM Movement and protests of summer 2020, played a large role in the coverage of the case.

“Say Her Name: 'Black Women Are Killed by Police Too'.” BBC News, BBC, www.bbc.com/news/av/world-us-canada-53370842.

This article analyzed police brutality against not only the black community, but black women as well. BBC News specifically examined why women of color are often overlooked when it comes to this issue. This information aided in my analysis of how I view the BLM movement as a young black lady. This analysis is showcased in my personal essay in which I discussed how social injustices and racism affects who I am, my thoughts, and how I interact with people/the world.

TodayShow. “This Is the 1 Piece of Advice People Would Give Their Younger Selves.”

TODAY.com, 17 June 2019,

www.today.com/health/life-lessons-what-advice-would-you-give-your-younger-self-t156396.

This source provided insight of the physiological process in which one undergoes when analyzing their growth from their younger years to current day. The TodayShow interviewed several viewers on what they would say to their younger selves and if would change anything for the future. This interview aided in my own self-reflection in which I had a conversation with my younger self on my growth as a learner and individual from 9th to 12th grade. This self-reflection is presented through my short documentary titled,

“The Final Curtain Call”.

Other Research Links:

Black Lives Matter May Be the Largest Movement in U.S. History

The Times Have Changed—Our Schools Haven't | What Isn't | Oregon's Challenge

Turning Black Lives Matter Protests Into Policy